EMERGENCY SERVICES

Emergency medical services treat illnesses and injuries that require an urgent medical response. In an emergency, people contact the emergency services by phoning a special number, for example 112 or 999. This put them in contact with services such as ambulances, paramedics, the police or fire brigade, who provide help.

Paramedics and ambulances provide out-of-hospital treatments and transportation to hospitals. They give give the first response to call for help.

Hospitals have Emergency Rooms (ER) and/or Emergency Wards (EW) where patients are given urgent attention. These facilities provide initial treatment for a wide spectrum of illnesses and injuries that require immediate medical care. People with severe injuries and trauma are taken there for emergency treatment. ER and EW facilities operate around the clock, 24 hours a day.

In some countries, emergency department have become important entry points for those without other means of access to medical care. The people who work in these facilities make a difference in the lives of people. They have compassion for other people.
