Read this text very carefully and provide possible answers to the questions below.

THE WORLD REFUGEES

There are more refugees in the world than ever before in history. There are people who have suffered so much violence and persecution in their homeland that they have been forced to flee either to another country or to a safer region of their own country. Many refugees camps without sufficient food, water, health or educational facilities. In many places, violence and fighting continue to threaten their lives even on exile.

This is the fate of hundreds of thousands of people from Darfur region of Sudan in East Africa. For decades there had been tension between two groups of population over land right. A brutal civil war broke out in 2003 between government troops and rebel fighters for more than three million people flee their homes.

Over a million people were living in group and in camps in Sudan while many flood to neighboring Chad to find safety. But nowhere was safe and looting and rebel attacks against civilians and aid work continued throughout the war region and even across the border. Tens of thousands more died from starvation. The situation in Sudan has been described as one of the worst humanitarian tragedies in recent years.

There was an open door policy which caused major problems with refugees competing with local people for scarce resources.
