SECTION C. READING COMPREHENSION (10 MARKS)

Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow.

What are Human Rights?

Human rights are commonly understood as being those rights which are natural to human beings. The concept of human rights acknowledges that every single human being is entitled to enjoy his or her human rights without distinction as a race, colour, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, natural or social origin, property, birth and other status.

Human rights are legally guaranteed by human rights and laws protecting individuals and groups against actions that interfere with fundamental freedoms and human dignity. They are expressed in treaties, customary international law, bodies of principles and other sources of law. Human rights law places an obligation on states to act in a particular way and prohibits states from engaging in specified activities. However, the law does not establish human rights. Human rights are inherent entitlements which come to every person as a consequence of human being. Human rights are founded on respect for the dignity and worth of each person. They are universal, meaning that they are applied equally and without discrimination to all people. No one can have his or her own rights taken away and it is insufficient to respect some human rights and not others. All human rights should therefore be seen as having equal importance and of being equally essential to respect for the dignity of every person.

SECTION D: ESSAY WRITING (10 MARKS)

Topic 1: Rules and Obligations of a Citizen

A citizen is a person who is legally recognized as a member of a state or country, entitled to certain rights and obligated to follow certain rules. As a citizen, you have rights such as the right to education, the right to freedom of speech, the right to vote, the right to equality, and the right to protection by the law. However, a good citizen also has obligations, such as paying taxes, obeying the law, respecting the rights of others, participating in community activities, and defending the country if necessary. If these rules and regulations are not respected, it can lead to chaos, injustice, and a breakdown of social order. For example, if citizens do not pay taxes, the government may not have enough funds to provide essential services like healthcare and education. Similarly, if people do not respect the law, crime rates may increase, leading to an unsafe society.

Topic 2: Violence in the Society

Violence is the use of physical force to harm or injure someone. In society, people suffer violence in various ways, such as domestic abuse, robbery, sexual assault, bullying, and political violence. The disadvantages of violence include physical and psychological trauma, social instability, and economic losses. To stop this evil act, the government should enforce strict laws against violence, educate the public on the dangers of violence, provide support for victims, and promote peaceful conflict resolution methods. By taking these steps, we can create a safer and more harmonious society.
