Most of the young women in some areas of Mobololand speak simple English, but are unable to read and write. As children, they had no opportunity to go to school, but as time goes on, they are beginning to be interested in reading, writing English and French." it is never too late to learn", said Aisha, a young lady from Mobololand." people here used to think that women's education was important. For the people of my area, women ought to stay at home, do the housework, get married and have children.

"I have no time for such beliefs," replied Mariama". Those who say things make me angry. Look at Mrs Egogo, the Maths teacher in our village school; she no husband and earns her living very well. When you go to the city, you find so many women teachers, doctors, engineers, and even architects."

"Many families in my area are very poor" said Amira. When money is available for education, it is the boys who are the first to have their fees paid. It is said that girls will soon get support from their husband".

"look at my case: My father Amadou, has two children, a boy and me, and he could not send both of us to school because he is poor. In addition, my mother is always sick and cannot take care of the home. So my father needs me at home. What would you do if you were him?"
